What crime is reported to the police?

Only 23% of crimes were reported to the Police over the last 12 months. Household offences were reported more often (34%) than personal offences (17%).

Male and female victims report to the Police almost equally often.

Theft of motor vehicles is the offence most commonly reported to the police over the last 12 months (82%). Fraud/deception and cybercrime are the offences least commonly reported to the Police (7%).

If people perceive that the incident is a crime, they are more likely to report it to the police.

NOTE: Bubble size reflects the proportion of all incidents viewed as a crime (59%) or not a crime (34%).

Generally, if people perceive that the incident is serious, they are more likely to report it to the Police.